

One part number.

Three correct prices.

Which one did your buyer see?

1

Monday, 9:12 am. The distributor.

Contract tier. Net 30. He expects the price he negotiated in March.

2

Tuesday, 9:15 pm. A new buyer.

No account yet. List price. She is comparing three tabs and one deadline.

3

Friday, 4:50 pm. The big account.

A volume break starts at the next step. Nobody remembers which line.

4

A guessed price always costs.

Guess high and the buyer leaves. Guess low and the margin does.

5

Price should follow the buyer.

I answer from the pricing of the customer group a buyer belongs to.
