

Three people. Three answers.

One Monday question.

How many inquiries came in last week?

1

Email is the biggest pile.

Example week: 41 emails counted, 16 with a shared record. The other 25 sat in personal inboxes.

2

Phone is the leakiest door.

15 of 17 product calls left no record. The phone rang, someone answered, and nothing was written down.

3

The whole formula fits on a note.

Counted minus recorded, divided by counted. In the example, 41 of 70 is about 59%.

4

Your number is a floor.

Buyers who looked and left never appear on a tally. The true gap is at least this wide.

5

Count it this week.

Tally sheets on Monday. Reconcile on day eight. Fix the biggest door first, then count again.
